Dr. Klemm was then called upon to read Dr. Harris' essay on "Education and Crime." The paper, which was a reply to a recent publication of Mrs. Rebecca Harding Davis, claiming that crime is an outgrowth of education, was interesting throughout, and was attentively listered to. It proved by actual statistics that crime is not only not increased, but materially diminished by education.

Considerable discussion followed the reading of the paper, in which Captain MeLoughlin, Dr. Jack, Dr. Klemm and others took part. A short recess for social inter-

When the last number on the program, a contraito solo, "At the Fountain," to be sung by Miss Olive Simpson, was announced, Mr. S. H. Agnew proposed, and Mr. R. A. The suits are the result, it is said, of a runaway accident on the Washington and Georgetown turnpike last Sunday afternoon. While driving along the pike near Rockville in a buggy with his two little girls Mr. Rabbitt's horse took fright at an engine which stood on a track of the Washington and Rockville electric railway near the turnpike. The animal ran away and bo ted down an embankment, upsetting the vehicle and throwing the three occupants out. Mr. Rabbitt sustained a painful injury to the head and his body was considerably bruised. One of the little girls had her leg injured. The buggy was badly damaged.

JOHNSON PUBLIC SCHOOL

Report by Capt. Gaillard of Recent Inspection of the Fuilding.

Estimate of Cost of Reconstructing the Heating and Ventilating System-The Recommendations.

Capt. Gaillard, the assistant to the Engineer Commissioner of the District, today submitted to the Commissioners a report of the inspection and examination of the Johnson Public School building at Mount Pleasant, which building is claimed by the people of Columbia Heights and Mount Pleasant to be in an insanitary condition and in pressing need of repairs. This struc-ture, together with thirty-eight other publie school buildings in the District, is sup-plied with the Smead system of heating and ventilation, dry closets forming a part of the system. Together with his report, Capt. Gaillard submitted an estimate made by the inspector of plumbing of the cost by the inspector of plumbing of the cost of replacing the Smead dry-closet system in the Johnson building with a system of independent closets of the same type as have been recently installed in other District school buildings. The inspector states that the cost of eighteen closets, two wash basins, concrete floors, etc., will be $2,101.50. Capt. Gaillard explains that the funds now available do not warrant such a change at present, additional funds being necessary; but he states that the change would be undoubtedly in the interest of health and progress.

Text of the Report.

Text of the Report.

His report is as follows:
"I have the honor to report that, in acordance with verbal instructions from you visited the Johnson School, accompanied by the inspector of buildings and the in pector of plumbing, District of Columbia spector of plumbing. District of Columbia, and made a thorough examination of same. The entire Smead system was carefully tested with an anemometer, with burnt sulphur and with peppermint, and no back drafts were discovered.

"As a result of this examination, a shallow brick yard drain has been ordered cleaned; broken covers on the Smead closets have been repaired; the filling of an old well in the yard has been completed, and a new water closet has been ordered for the teachers' toilet room.

"The approach to the school grounds, especially from the scath, is very bad and leads over private preperty. I would recommend that, at the earliest possible opportivality, a beard walk about four (1) feet in which be laid from the south boundary of the school lot to Kenesaw avenue, provided the consent of the owners of the unimproved property over which it would pass can be obtained.

"I would further recommend such other

be obtained.
"I would further recommend such other beard walks in the vicinity as the computing engineer, District of Columbia, deems necessary for enabling children to approach the lot without wetting their feet. If the District cannot pay for the labor of laying such a walk on private property, it is quite possible that the patrons of the school would assume the responsibility of paying for this item, provided the District could, from the supply of old material on hand, furnish the necessary lumber.

Inspector's Estimate.

"Inclosed is an estimate by the inspector f plumbing for replacing the Smead dry loset system in this school with a system of independent water closets of the type used in other school buildings in the District. The funds now available do not warran, this change at the present time; an additional appropriation will be necessary to make this change, which is un-doubtedly in the interest of health and "The lot on which the building is situ-

"The lot on which the building is situated is so that that at present proper drainings is not obtained, and I would respectfully recommend that an estimate of $500 for drainage of yard and protection of walls of basement from dampness be asked for in connection with the preceding item."

Probable Action.

The report is now in the hards of Comnissioner Ross, who has immediate superision over the public schools, and it is probable that he will recommend to his issociates that the improvements suggested by Capt. Gaillard be made. The Commissioners have repeatedly, it is stated, endeavored to provide a suitable approach to the Johnson building from Kenesaw aveto the Johnson building from Kenesaw avenue, but have never been able to obtain the consent of the owner of the land on which the walk must be laid. Such consent must be obtained before the board walk recommended by Capt. Galilard can be laid, and it is stated that the Commissioners will again endeavor to induce the owner of the property between the building and kenesaw avenue to permit such temporary use of his land. In their estimates to cover the expenses of the District government during the next fiscal year, the Commissioners asked for authority and funds with which to open a thoroughfare southward which to open a thoroughfare southward stoners asked for authority and funds with which to open a thoroughfare southward from the building to Kenesaw avenue, and they will make every effort to secure such authority and funds.

It is also believed that the Commissioners will ask Congress to grant them the authority and money with which to replace the dry closets in the building with those estimated for by the inspector of plumbing, and recommended by Capt Gaillard. It will be recalled that the health officer has more than once recommended the discontinuance of such dry closets in the public school buildings, and it is not improbable that Congress will be asked by the Commissioners for authority and funds with which to replace them in all the other thirty-eight school buildings in which they now exist, with sewer connected and otherwise modernly equipped closets.

AFFAIRS IN THE TRANSVAAL

The Subject Discussed in Lecture on International Law.

Prof. Ion Addresses the Students of National University - Paramount Power and Vassal State.

In his lecture on international law Thurs day night to the students of the law school of the National University, continuing the subject of intervention, and, after explaining the Monroe doctrine and the modern developments of that doctrine, which differ essentially from what it was originally, Dr. Theodore P. Ion spoke on the actual intervention of Great Britain in the affairs of the South African republic.

Prof. Ion, after establishing the rule that that republic is only a semi-sovereign state. because she cannot conclude a treaty with-out the consent of England, examined the out the consent of England, Calling enditled the suzerain power to intervene for all purposes in the internal affairs of that all purposes in the internal affairs of that semi-sovereign state, or whether that right was not limited to certain exceptional cases. The rule, he said, is that the para-mount power has no right to intervene in the internal affairs of the vassal state, unmount power has no right to intervene in the internal affairs of the vassal state, unless such right has been reserved by special agreement. In neither of the conventions signed between Great Britain and the republic, he said, is there anything in the way of giving specific right to the suzerain power to have a direct voice in matters concerning the management of the government and the administration of the Transvaal state. That the latter was not like the republic of Andorra, whose suzerains, France and Spain, had a direct voice in the administration of that small state.

Prof. Ion examined the grounds of intervention given by the British government, which appeared in the declarations of the colonial secretary and the prime minister of Great Britain, and the queen's speech before the protogation of the last parliament. These he divided into two classes, principal and secondary. The first refers, he said, to "the utmost inequality" between the two races, Boers and Uitlanders—the latter having no share in management of latter having no share in management of the government, in short, that they do not enjoy political rights.

the government-in short, that they do not enjoy political rights.

After a lengthy review of the situation Prof. Ion examined the secondary grounds of intervention, as he termed them. These may be divided, he said, into grounds which might justify an independent state to intervene in the affairs of another equally sovereign state, and those which might give a similar right to a suzerain power in the affairs of a semi-sovereign or protected state. Intervention, he said, cannot be justified on the same grounds. In fact, a misgovernment in a general manner existing in a sovereign state cannot be held sufficient to justify a foreign power to interpose in the internal affairs of such sovereign state. That in cases of gross injustice committed against the subjects of a foreign state, the utmost that a power could do is to resort to "general reprisais" for indemnification or to recall the diplomatic agent as a mark of disfavor.

But when similar grievances existed against a semi-sovereign state, such a state, being under the protectorate of the suzerain power, the acts of the former reflect indirectly on that paramount power. her arrest.

beyond any doubt, and the grievances of foreign subjects are likely to lead to complications with foreign powers; if the bad administration is likely to result in Insurrection of anarchy; when such a condition is a permanent menace to the peace of the neighboring possessions of the suzerain power—in such exceptional cases the latter has the right to intervene in order to bring a new order of things, compatible with the general peace and the interests of such suzerain power. He said the whole question was a matter of fact as to whether affairs had reached that climax in the South African republic to justify the British intervention. No one, he said, could criticise the long-cherished ambition of the republic to rank among sovereign states, which deserves not criticism, but praise, as it is the inherent right of every people to be free and independent. But that the first duty of every people, also, is to show that they are worthy for it. That instead of that, the Boer rulers have done everything to allerate the sympathy of the British residents, and especially of the British residents. That no one can contest the right of the republic to refuse political rights to aliens, if such concession would endanger the safety of the state, but was it wise to do so? The aliens being in majority in the state, was it possible to put off indefinitely beyond any doubt, and the grievances of do so? The aliens being in majority in state, was it possible to put off indefinit the solution of such a question? That least ha! the administration been good, as to leave no room for complaint in that is spect, it is probab'e that all the well-thin spect, it is probable that all the well-think-ing people, and not those who carried only by mere sentiment, would have condemned Great Britain for wishing "to help Britons to un-British themselves." That on ac-count of the shortcomings of the Boer rul-ers, it was likely, if not certain, that the republic will lose even its semi-independ-ence and become again a British possession.

VANDAL AGAIN AT WORK. Two Cases of Dress Cutting Reported

Another case of dress cutting was re ported to the police last night. The victin on this occasion was Mrs. L. H. Blake, who lives at 607 4th street northwest. She was in a store on 7th street making purchases, when her attention was called to the condition of her skirt and velvet cape. They were cut in several places and ruined.

Since the offer of a reward of $160 for the apprehension of the "cutter" was announced the members of the force and private detectives have been extremely active in the search. Before the reward was offered Maj. Sylvester had men detailed at the big stores and other places where there are crowds. Several descriptions were given of a man supposed to be the vandal, but he has succeeded in keeping out of the hands of the police.

As stated in The Star several days ago, many of the policemen believe that the work is that of a woman. It is also stated that the cutting does not all seem to have been done with the same kind of instrument. on this occasion was Mrs. L. H. Blake, who
